HELEN CLAY FRICK FOUNDATION ARCHIVES

Until recently, Henry Clay Frick's renown, both as a successful industrialist and art collector, was largely gleaned from secondary sources. In 2001, however, the Helen Clay Frick Foundation concluded that access to the primary documents left behind by Mr. Frick and his daughter Helen, as well as all necessary conservation, be entrusted to the Frick Art Reference Library working in partnership with the University of Pittsburgh. As a result, many rich and varied archival resources, dating from the 1870s to 1984, are becoming available to users of the Library and can provide the key to a deeper understanding of Mr. Frick's personality and his world. The impressive collection of photographs, scrapbooks, correspondence, financial and business records, and printed ephemera, open our eyes to Mr. Frick's feelings about courtship and family, just as they document his and his family's position in society, business practices, philanthropy and personal indulgences.
